

Community Wildfire Safety Program California Foundation for Independent Living Centers

Support for Communities with Medical Needs

This year, PG&E is continuing our collaboration with the California Foundation for Independent Living Centers (CFILC). Through our partnership, we are able to offer more support to people with disabilities and the aging population (individuals with Access and Functional Needs) before, during and after a Public Safety Power Shutoff (PSPS) or other wildfire.

Disability Disaster Access & Resources Program

The Disability Disaster Access & Resources Program (DDARP) is a collaboration between PG&E and the CFILC that enables qualifying customers who use electrical medical devices to access resources that will lessen the impact of power loss.

The DDARP will determine who qualifies for resources through an intake process. Qualification criteria includes people with disabilities and chronic conditions that require electricity to live independently. Portable backup batteries may be provided through a grant, lease-to-own or financial loan application. Coordination of resources takes time, so PG&E customers are encouraged to reach out to their local participating DDARP center in advance of a PSPS event.

Support for customers with medical and independent living needs includes:

Additional emergency preparedness outreach and education

Food stipends during PSPS events

Backup portable batteries

Improved access to the Medical Baseline Program

Accessible transportation resources

Hotel stays during PSPS events

Frequently Asked Questions

What is a DDARP center?

DDARP centers are grassroots organizations run by and for people with disabilities that provide advocacy services for disabled and aging populations. Services include peer support, information and referral, direct advocacy, systems change advocacy, housing, assistive technology, independent living skills training, and transition and personal assistance services.

Who is funding this program?

PG&E is providing the CFILC $5 million in funding to staff and offer program support to individuals with disabilities and older adults in 2021.

How will the application process work?

Individuals can visit disabilitydisasteraccess.org or contact a participating DDARP center to apply. The CFILC's Disability Disaster Advisory Committee will make the ultimate decision on who qualifies for backup batteries and other resources. Medical needs and income will be taken into consideration.
